About

On behalf of the Polymer Processing Society, the University of Los Andes is pleased to announce the 39th International Conference, to be held in Cartagena Colombia, on 19 – 23 May 2024.

The Polymer Processing Society was founded in March 1985 with the aim of fostering scientific understanding and technical innovation in polymer processing. Since its founding, over 35 international conferences have been organized, with the purpose of providing a mechanism and format for interaction and presentation of research results among the international polymer processing community. The thematic focus lies on all formulation, conversion and shaping operations applied to polymeric systems in the transformation from their monomeric forms to commercial products.

Based on our long-term experience, we expect up to 700 participating scientists, engineers and designers in the field of polymer research and development. An important ingredient for the success of this meeting will be the participation of professionals in all aspects of polymer science and technology from all around the world.

The scientific program will include lectures by internationally renowned invited speakers, contributed oral presentations by both senior and younger scientists and engineers, as well as oral and poster presentations by young postdocs, PhD students, master students and engineers working in academia and industry. Since the close collaboration between universities, research institutes and industry is key for technological advancement, a substantial participation of industry is highly welcomed.
